

Zambian - German Development Cooperation

Germany in Zambia

At the same time that Zambia celebrated the golden jubilee of its independence in 2014, Germany and Zambia also commemorated the 50th anniversary of the resumption of diplomatic relations and the beginning of German development cooperation in the country. Since 1964 Germany and Zambia have implemented numerous projects aimed at improving the welfare of the Zambian people and supporting the political, economic, environmental and social development of the country.

In now more than five decades of cooperation Germany has committed a total of 1.036 billion Euro under bilateral financial and technical cooperation. Furthermore, since 1975 the Official Development Aid from Germany to Zambia via multilateral organisations and the European Union has amounted to approx. 560 million Euro. In addition, Germany substantially participated in the Heavily Indebted Poor Countries Initiative (HIPC) and Multilateral Debt Relief Initiative. The cumulated German debt relief for Zambia amounts to about 1.2 billion Euro, strongly helping the country to make progress on its way towards the achievements of the Sustainable Development Goals.

This leaflet provides you with an overview of the many German – both governmental and non-governmental – institutions and organisations that are engaged in Zambia. The range of our cooperation projects is manifold: from drilling boreholes and erecting water pumps to providing expertise in the field of good governance, from improving the lives of people with disabilities to protecting Zambia's pristine wildlife, promoting sustainable natural resource management and enhancing the access to energy.

The German Embassy and its many partners in German development cooperation remain committed to a fruitful cooperation with the Government and the people of Zambia in order to further advance the fight against poverty, and the promotion of democracy, human rights and the rule of law. As Germans we are grateful for Zambia's hospitality, and we pay our respect to a country whose long history of internal peace, freedom of religion, democratic transfers of power and generous integration of refugees from neighbouring states make it a best practice case for the African continent.
